The ministry added, however, that the pattern of the life table for the Japanese people was becoming more like those in the U.S. and European countries, despite the recent drop.

The average life expectancy of the Japanese people in 1969 is based on the number of years a baby born in that year will live.

Officials at the ministry said that the recent reduction in the rate of increase in the average life span was a temporary phenomenon attributed to the influenza epidemic in the country in 1968 and 1969.

Whether or not the phenomenon would continue would not be known until the trend of life expectancy of the next one or two years had been carefully studied, the officials said.

"Down With Japanese Imperialism!" Is Latest Red China Hate Campaign

HONG KONG. — Shrill slogans of "Down with Japanese imperialism" blared out of Radio Peking amid a stirring march broadcast repeated recently in China's new "Hate Japan" campaign.

The historical revolutionary song, "Advance," now being taught throughout the nation, carries this new lyric:

"Compatriots, Unite together.
Rush to the anti-Japanese front.
Advance. Take up arms quickly.
Down with Japanese imperialism.
Advance. Eliminate the agressors.
We are resolved to fight the war of resistance till the end.
Let's closely follow Chairman Mao. Hold the red flag high.
Let's closely follow Chairman Mao. March along the roard of liberation.
Down with Japanese imperialism."

The music stopped when singers shouted the slogan "Down with Japanese imperialism" at the top of their voices.

The radio also rebroadcast a joint editorial of the Peking People's Daily and Liberation Daily published under the title, "Down with the Revived Japanese Militarist," marking the 25th anniversary of Chinese victory in the anti-Japanese war.

In the editorial, the official party and Army papers called on all the Asian peoples to make it as their common task to "smash the revived Japanese militarism."

An article, written by a veteran ... their thorough burial. The Mao-armed Chinese people and Army are forever invincible."

Still another article written by a militiaman, an anti-Japanese war hero, recalled how in a people's war of resistance the Chinese villagers had annihilated better-armed Japanese invaders with swords and spears.

"If Japanese imperialists should invade us again, we will annihilate them in a sea of another people's war," the article cautioned.

オ州新民主党がルーイスを選出

政権担当の用意ありと語る

オンタリオ新民主党としては史上最大の同党大会が先週末三日間トロントで行われ、最終日の四日午後、新党主候補スチーブン・ルーイス氏が第一回投票で一、一八八票を獲得して当選した。ルーイス氏の対抗馬、ワルター・ピットマン氏は六四二票をやっとかせいで敗退した。永年党主のマクドナルド氏は大会席上さようなら演説を行つて現役から引退した。

スカボロ選出区から州議員として政界に打つて出た壮年のルーイス氏は〃党主引退声明直後、党主候補をいち早く名乗り出て、選挙運動を早速開始、ピットマン議員は六週間おくれて候補に立つことを発表、ルーイス議員に追跡戦をくりひろげたが、有力労組の絶対支持をうけているルーイス議員を追いかけ得ずに終つた。

新民主党主に楽勝したルーイス氏は五日から再会された州議会に同党主として議場にのぞみ、来年春か秋に予想される州選挙を控えて、新民主党の大進出をはかり政権担当の用意があるといつている。

しかし同氏は『新しい国家主義の波が党内を支配しようとしている形勢は決して有益ではないと信じる。我々は単純な反米主義であつてはいけない。産業経済界のカナダ中心州であるオンタリオの宗主権を回復する方向に努力が注がれなければならない』と當選後記者会見で語つた。

國營化へ

オ州新民主党は同大会でカナダの動力資源産業の国営化を明らかにした。決議案が採決されたところによると、石油、ガス産業の国営化は絶対多数で賛成された。

「米国会社がこれら動力資源をコントロールしている間は、その利益は米国のみにあつてカナダ国民には與えられない」と新民主党極左派が強く反米気勢をあげて国営化決議を通過させた。

【カイロ】ナセル故大統領の国葬に参列したのち、コスイギン・ソ連首相は、誰がナセル大統領の後任に選ばれても、エジプトのイスラエルに対する軍事的立場を今まで通り支持すると約束した。後任有力候補は臨時大統領のアンワー・サダット氏（五二）とアラブ社会主義連合幹部のアリイ・サブレー氏（五二）の二人とみられている。

ソ連としては現在エジプトに約一万の軍事アドバイザーや教官を一九五五年から派遣しており、その費用だけでも五十億ドルと推定され、他に経済及び産業投資もあつて、それもほとんど同額に達するものとみられている。

ナセル大統領はソ連との関係について、ソ連は債権国であり、エジプトは債務国であることから、エジプトはソ連より歩がよく、平等立場の関係を進めていくのが私の方針であると日頃語つていた。

Popular Novel Has Nikkei Character

By ALLAN BEEKMAN

CALIFORNIA GENERATION By Jacqueline Briskin, J. Lippincott Company, 570 pages, $7.95.

Asked his opinion of the work of Charles Dickens, Harry Leon Wilson pointed out what he considered a major flaw in the writing of the greatest of novelists. Dickens assigns each character a stunt to perform: one has weak legs that carry him to humorous misadventures; Mrs. Wilkins Micawber regularly asserts she will never desert her husband.

By continually having each character perform his assigned stunt, Dickens impedes the flow of the story.

The characters in "California Generation" are neither as vital nor memorable as those of Dickens, but in common with her illustrious predecessor, the authoress has assigned each character a stunt. But unlike the Dickensian characters, each performs the same stunt: sex.

The authoress describes each of these superabundant sex acts in clinical detail. Since each has them achieve variety through multitudinous departures from the norm — from the effete to sex in real man to man fashion.

Class of 1960

Beneath thick layers of sex is the bare bones of a story revolving around the 1960 graduation class of California High. Against the social problems of the following decade—the oppression of blacks in the South, the Watts Riots, the unpopular war in Vietnam -- each character works out his problems, of which the sex drive is the most urgent.

Orphan and social reformer, Clay Gillies spends his time, even as a grown man, looking for his mother; he finds her in a colored woman. Born in a concentration camp, Ken Igawa marries a white classmate born to the social register.

Subordinate to sex, of course, Ken has a problem he never succeeds in resolving. In his mid-twenties, he is a "Japanese boy" among mature Americans. Though he is a "blooming, unobtained genius," he is incapable of recognizing his perennial immaturity and un-American status.

Instead, he goes around looking for racial prejudice, finding it in unusual places—such as in bed with his wife. He also finds it with other women -- sometimes operating in his favor.

At least one of his bedmates chooses him for the novelty of bedding with a "Japanese boy." But difficult, temperamental artist that he is, he is unappreciative of such windfalls.

A Sorry Lot

Despite his cantankerousness, even the authoress shows partiality for him. He fares better than most of the other characters. In general, the class of 1960 is a sorry lot.

As a woman who went to bed with one of them remarks, "They're a compound of what frightens us about today's young. Drugs. LSD. Miscegenation. Adultery. Illegal abortions, high school dropouts, runaway hippies, wild promiscuity, communist influences. Homosexuality."

The story moves towards a climax, the current slowed and diverted by the copious and humorless descriptions of sex. Except in one case where the lives of two characters are affected by a resulting pregnancy, and another where a character is discharged and blacklisted because of homosexuality, the sex is extraneous to the story.

In Dickens, the stunts have the redeeming feature of being original and funny.

Further, the authoress appears to believe that vulgarity is a necessary concomitant of sex. The female characters are often as coarse and unfeminine as stevedores. But the use of four-letter words is not restricted to dialogue and the thought of the characters: the authoress herself uses them in narration.

Talented Writer

Despite these faults, this first novel is selling briskly in California; as this is written, it appears to be headed for the national best-seller list. The danger is that the unquestionably talented authoress may attribute the popularity of the book to its faults rather than the virtue she has imparted to it through her intelligence and integrity -- to her dedication to giving an honest picture of her generation.

Perhaps good judgment will prevail. Time may bring her more mature vision, relief from her fixation on sex, and respect for the English language. If that happy day comes to pass, she my bring forth a novel of literary merit.

scrawling phrases:

"I got to the door and locked it, I didn't want him to come back. I went to the phone and tried to tap out the room number. I couldn't seem to make the operator understand.

"I unlocked the door and went into the hall. I banged on the walls and door. Nobody came.

"I felt angry. I thought "this apathy, this not wanting to get involved is too much!"

Finally deliverance came in the person of Patti Iwataki of Los Angeles, her other convention rommate.

"Patti started screaming"

Ranko was going to live.

Hospital Stay

The next three weeks in the hospital brought her nothing but "good vibrations" as she was "almost smothered in goodness and sincerity" — by doctors and nurses who not only cared for her but sent her flowers, and by police guards who not only treated her kindly but exchanged ideas with her.

Ranko gave up any thought of death once she reached the warmth of the hospital.

"I didn't even know I was in critical condition then. Everyone was trying to make me feel OK. When the doctor asked me if I had any allergies and told me to write on his sleeve. I put down 'dog food' and 'peat moss.' I wanted to ease things, too."

Ranko gets winded easily, now, "I cannot run, I bought a new bike just before I went to Chicago but I can't ride it."

She may have to undergo another operation "if scar tissue builds up on my windpipe."

Physical Condition

And when she gets up after lying down she has to put her hand behind her head and boost: "The muscles in my neck aren't strong enough yet."

But basically her well-being "jars" people: "They expected I'd be in bandages and unable to speak.

She remained in Chicago with her mother for an additional period for police questioning before returning to Stockton.

Even here the protective cocoon remained sealed for a time:

"I discovered the guys (friends in The Yellow Seed) had overnight patrols at the house. And whenever I stepped outside, one of them would happen by."

But Ranko can't live in a chrysalis. And her understanding parents realize this. So she moves about freely.

Over the Labor Day weekend she had a tearful reunion in Los Angeles with Patti and she returned south for a birthday party on Sept. 17 for her — she turned 18 — given by friends. "Some kids are flying in from New York for it," she says.

Ranko recoils at racist implications and innuendoes about the slaying. She states flatly that neither she nor Evelynn met any Panthers in Chicago, that drugs were not involved, and that Evelynn was not at a "rap" session before the murder but at a staid testimonial dinner for a long time JACL leader.

Not that either girl shied away from confrontation. They were just busy. When Ranko saw tepees in the center of a Chicago street she asked questions and discovered Indians were protesting an eviction.

Helped for U.S. Indians

She took time from the convention one morning to wash dishes for a camped family and at a convention bazaar bought a button inscribed "I care" from one booth, set up a table next to it, and told comers: "If you really care you'll give for the Indians." She collected $8 there. And when money came to the hospital, she sent it to the encampement.

She has had a stream of mail — mostly supportive "you are not alone;" some religious, "turn your life to God," and one crank "you should have died instead of Evelynn," apparently reacting to one of her notes which said, "Don't blame him, it was not his fault."

Ranko neither hates nor excuses the killer. She looks beyond him. "The only way to stop these kind of things is to get at the root and the root is not the man but the conditions that make him act."

JACL chapters have sent her presents — clothing and books. An avid reader, she relishes these.

She worries because she lacked the foresight to apply for any scholarship, although she will enter the University of California at Santa Cruz with honors.

Her family has no idea yet how big a financial burden Chicago will place on it. The insurance company has not disclosed how much of the bill it will pay.

Even this cannot darken the sun for a girl who had death as a shadow very recently:

"Whenever I'm frustrated I remember the deep-down warmth of people. It is a good feeling of trust and brotherhood."

achieve their maximum life expectancy within 10 years and 5 years respectively, if the current rate of increase is maintained.

The countries known for long life expectancies of more than 70 years for men and more than 75 years for women include Sweden, the Netherlands and Norway.

But Japan could catch up with these countries in 10 years, the ministry said, if the necessary improvements in living standards were made.

On the basis of data collected in 1968, the ministry listed apoplexy as the most probable cause of future Japanese deaths.

It listed cancer and heart ailments as other principal causes of death for men in that order, and in the reverse order for women.
